THE JOURNAL OF POLITICAL ECONOMY

Published Quarterly, in December, March, June, and September of each year, by the University of Chicago

Edited by the Department of Political Economy

Editor, J. Laurence Laughlin. Managing Editor, T. B. Veblen

While not neglecting topics of a purely theoretical or speculative character, The Journal of Political Economy is established primarily to promote the scientific treatment of problems in practical economics, and devotes a large share of its space to such investigations and discussions as bear directly on business interests, touching banking, money, railway transportation, shipping, taxation, socialism, wages, agriculture, and the like.

THE

BIBLIOTHECA SACRA

VOL. LIII. 1896.

THE BIBLIOTHECA SACRA is published at Oberlin, Ohio, under the editorial management of Professor G. FREDERICK WRIGHT and Mr. Z. SWIFT HOLBROOK. Associate Editors: Professor EDWARDS A. PARK, of Andover; Dr. JUDSON SMITH, of Boston; Professors FRANK H. FOSTER, of Oakland, Cal.; WM. M. BARBOUR, of Montreal; S. IVES CURTISS, of Chicago; D. W. SIMON, of England; President CHARLES F. THWING, of Cleveland; Revs. A. A. BERLE and W. E. BARTON, of Boston; Professors E. H. JOHNSON, of Chester, Pa., and E. W. BEMIS, of Chicago.

As heretofore the BIBLIOTHECA SACRA will aim to meet the wants of the more intelligent public, both lay and clerical of all denominations, in the publication of thorough discussions of all topics of permanent interest touching the Christian religion. Prominence will continue to be given to Biblical Criticism, in its various departments; Theology, in its doctrinal, historical, and practical aspects; the Relation of Philosophy, Science, and Oriental discoveries to the Bible.

The department of Christian Sociology, under the editorial supervision of Mr. Z. Swift Holbrook, will have the aid of Professor E. W. Bemis, who will furnish over his own signature about twenty-five pages in each number for the year. This department will, from a conservative and business point of view, discuss the various efforts made to find practical expression and embodiment of the Christian spirit and of Christian ideas amid the profound and rapidly succeeding changes taking place in modern society.

While giving greater prominence than formerly to current topics of practical interest, especially to those of Christian Sociology, the general character of the BIBLIOTHECA SACRA will remain unchanged, and the discussion of all vital questions before the Christian public will be continued with that catholicity of spirit, that soundness of learning, and that thoroughness of treatment, which has characterized it from the beginning. It will welcome and aid all real progress in theology, and at the same time remain loyal to the historic faith of Christendom. Whatever periodicals of a more ephemeral character may be taken by pastors, theological students, and the more intelligent laymen, such thorough discussions as appear in the BIBLIOTHECA SACRA are indispensable to a complete mastery of the great themes that are constantly coming to the surface in modern thought.

TERMS:

Three dollars a year; 75 cents a number.

RECENT NOTICES FROM PRESS AND LETTERS.

"The BIBLIOTHECA SACRA for October is a strikingly good number." —The Advance.

"An admirable number. . . . So wide a field is hardly covered by any other periodical."—The Evangelist.

"The BIBLIOTHECA SACRA for October contains seven articles of marked ability and permanent value to the theological student and lay thinker."—Zion's Herald.

"We venture to say that it is rarely the case that a review or magazine can boast—as the BIBLIOTHECA SACRA for January may well do—of having an entire series of articles every one of which will be of greater or less interest to its readers. The BIBLIOTHECA knows well the texture of thought in the regions it habitually visits. Not more does a counting-room study the tastes and habits of its constituents."—Western Christian Advocate.

"One of the best numbers in its whole history."—Congregationalist.

"The editorial departments are stirringly and strongly conducted."—Central Christian Advocate.

"In its critical, sociological, Semitic, and oriental notes, as well as in other editorial departments, this number of the BIBLIOTHECA is most able."—Methodist Review.

"The BIBLIOTHECA SACRA for January comes to hand in an improved form and with a good supply of able articles on living questions . . . a remarkably valuable number of this able and scholarly review."—Christian Guardian.

"I have the BIBLIOTHECA SACRA from the beginning, and never enjoyed it more than now. The last number [October] is exceedingly rich from beginning to end."—Michigan pastor.

"It seems to me to lead the religious thought of the time."—Illinois pastor.

"I find the old BIBLIOTHECA SACRA as fresh as if it had not survived sixty-five of your Northern winters. I congratulate you on producing a Quarterly of such great and practical value."—California pastor.

"I first began to read the BIBLIOTHECA SACRA after I entered Crozer Theological Seminary, six years ago; and from the very first I was convinced that it occupied the first place among the theological quarterlies of our country."—Maryland pastor.

"The BIBLIOTHECA SACRA has been a welcome visitor to my study for thirty-five years. I know of no magazine that can fill its place. I am specially pleased with the recent numbers."—Massachusetts pastor.

"Always full of the best thought of the day. The critical notes are of great value."—Missionary in New Mexico.

NOTICES OF OUR SOCIOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

"The BIBLIOTHECA SACRA takes a new departure with its October number, adding to its already most valuable features a department of Christian Sociology, under the editorship of Mr. Z. Swift Holbrook, who is eminently fitted for this work."—Boston Daily Advertiser.

"Mr. Holbrook's notes show not only the practical knowledge of an actual business man, but the keen discrimination of a close thinker and wide observer."—The Critic.

"With the issue for October, the BIBLIOTHECA SACRA closes its sixty-fourth year of existence and enters upon a fresh subject of study, hopeful and promising. . . . The article which goes by the simple title of 'Christian Sociology' contains some wholesome truth well-expressed. . . . We see clearly that we shall at least be able to read Mr. Holbrook."—The Expository Times, Edinburgh.

"I have found them ['Christian Sociology' and 'Sociological Notes'] interesting and useful. The subjects which you have taken up are truly burning questions, and I am glad that you are giving your attention to them. I have been specially pleased with the passages beginning on page 551 [October number]."—George P. Fisher, D.D., LL.D.

"The BIBLIOTHECA is becoming increasingly valuable, dealing as it does not only with Biblical and scholarly themes, but also with questions of to-day, especially those which pertain to capital and labor and the sociological tendencies of the times. The number for July is peculiarly attractive."—Journal and Messenger.

"The BIBLIOTHECA SACRA for April is an admirable number. The new department devoted to the discussion of social questions greatly adds to its value and is ably conducted."—The Evangelical Churchman.

". . . Few persons outside a specially interested circle distinguish between sociology and socialism. This unhappy confusion of terms, that resemble each other only in their spelling, cannot long continue in the mind of any person who reads Mr. Holbrook's vigorous article."—Professor Shailer Mathews, of the University of Chicago, in Biblical World.

"Among the best recent literature to be read on the economic and industrial confusion in which we are plunged, we note a little republication by the Bibliotheca Sacra Co., The American Republic and the Debs Revolution, by Z. Swift Holbrook. As to Professor Wright's Introduction, it would be hard to name another six or eight pages which come so near to presenting the whole subject of political and social economy in a nutshell."—New York Independent.

"My dear Mr. Holbrook:—I am specially glad to learn that you are to have charge of the sociological department of the BIBLIOTHECA SACRA, because I know you will make it valuable, and through it will clear away some of the fog with which many minds are now clouded."—Dr. E. F. Williams ("Franklin," of the Congregationalist).
